

Sitting in the bench,
looking at ladies of
magnolia white
whose red lipstick has outspread because of busy city life.

Sitting in the bench,
looking at gentlemen with strong faces
whose ties are cockeyed
because of busy day.

They don't care,
they don't notice.
They do not know how to care and notice
because of busy city life.

They only see each-others'
mistakes
and dishonor
superiority.
They are only competitors
where no winners.

Betty Buht
Form 11