

Cosmos of Chaos

A silence created by an explosion, a light from the darkness;
The vacuum is full of things, some strange and often vast.
The constellations dance and shine across the new night's sky.
In the depths of deepest space,
You may feel the distant chill but,
The universe is grand and is growing grander still.

By Louis Caplan

Age 16

The Archbishop's School

Canterbury